

Class 1 prepare for their street party to celebrate (a day early) the wedding of Prince William and Catherine. Their preparation included making tiaras and crowns, painting plates and mugs and looking at all the different types of memorabilia. Everyone came dressed up for the occasion.

The school corridor turned out to be a great venue for the infants' indoor street party. Looking patriotic in red, white and blue and with flags flying Class 1 & 2 sat down to some tasty food. Class 2 (above) had carefully iced the cakes for the party. There was clearly no shortage of children wanting to sample their cakes (below).

Others were happy to spend some time being creative with their food before getting down to eating.

Mr Archer pays a visit to the party guests to check all is well. There does seem to be some dissatisfaction in the ranks (left). It appears someone has an empty plate which isn't going down well. But soon everyone is enjoying themselves and getting into party mood.
